Thank you to those who organised the farewell events in Newtownbutler and Donagh and to all those who attended. It was great to have the chance to greet you all and say goodbye. Thank you to the Parish Staff and Volunteers for everything they have done for the parish, and for me personally, over the last 7 years. It's all appreciated more than I can put into words. Thank you to Fr. King for his friendship and for his many years of generous service to this parish.

I have had a wonderful experience of Priestly Ministry in the Parish of Galloon since 2019. Together, we have shared countless occasions of joy and happiness and also some tragedies and challenges. What stands out for me is that I have always met wonderful people along the way, received generous hospitality and always felt welcome. I treasure those experiences, those people, the moments of prayer, the celebration of the Sacraments, the lessons learned and the experience gained. In every situation, even in the darker times, I was able to recognise the Presence of God and the work of the Holy Spirit - that is a wonderful blessing!

I would like to encourage you all to persevere in the faith, persist in your commitment to the Vigil/Sunday Masses and continue to seek and recognise God on your journey through life. Treasure your two beautiful Churches and Adoration Chapels and sanctify them with your prayer and your presence. I wish Fr. Polycarp every blessing as he begins his ministry in Galloon Parish. May it be a fruitful experience for him and I trust that he will receive a warm and supportive welcome here, as I did. I leave you with a beautiful prayer that I came across recently:

Look at the problem - and be depressed.

Look at the self - and be oppressed.

Look at Jesus - and be at rest.

For He will lead you - to do what is best. Amen.

It reminds me of a saying of St. Carlo Acutis: "Sadness is looking at ourselves, happiness is looking towards God".

May God bless you and your families abundantly, Fr. Kevin Malcolmson.
