Bulletin 11th & 12th July 2026

Last Thursday afternoon I was invited to a Memorial Mural unveiling in North Belfast. Caoimhin was just eight years old when he died on 9th July 2023. He was the only child in Ireland diagnosed with a disease called ROHHAD, a complicated illness for which there is no known cure. Caoimhin lived life to the full and remains an inspiration to his parents, sister, two brothers and all who met him.

After his passing, his mother and the family decided that they would do all they could to raise awareness of this disease. With research, a better understanding may be gained and a cure found. The unveiling of the mural dedicated to this brave young boy is not the end of their work, but a step along the road.

None of us have a say in the life that we are given. We can decide what to do about that life and how we live it. Caoimhin's life was turned into a story of hope and of love. The seed of life that he received yielded one-hundredfold of courage and love. Had he and his family been bitter, nobody could point a finger at them. Instead, they showed how to create holy ground against all the odds.

So often, it is easier to live on the fringes of life and avoid suffering. In Caoimhin, we have a story of how his Cross yielded a Rising that will go on inspiring others. This is what must give joy to the heart of God to see how little children can be the best teachers of how the Kingdom of God comes about. After all, it was Jesus who held up a child as a model of the Kingdom.

On Thursday afternoon, I was at the unveiling of a Mural. I was also at the shrine of a Saint who turned darkness into light and left behind a family brokenhearted to lose him, but unrelenting in their determination to show that he will continue to make a difference.

The seed falls where God, the Sower, chooses. We decide what we do with what we have received from His hands. [Aidan Troy, C.P.]
