Thoughts on the Gospel for October 25th 2026

"Love and do what you like" is a statement attributed to the great St Augustine. He did not say "Do what you like", rather he said, "Love, and do what you like." The word 'love' changes the meaning of the statement completely. We have a similar theme in today's Gospel. It touches on the very heart of the Christian message and indeed of all human living. In these weeks, we are at a stage in Matthew's Gospel where Jesus is being challenged by various leading groups among the Jews. Jesus had just reduced a group of Sadducees to silence, much to the delight of their rivals, the Pharisees (see Matt 22:23-33). Now it is some Pharisees who approach him with their own question, a question much debated among themselves: Teacher, which commandment in the law is the greatest? Unlike other encounters, there is not necessarily any malice in their approach. As a Rabbi, influential with the crowds and known by many as someone with a mind of his own, Jesus' opinion was of great interest to them. There were over 600 different laws, and much time was spent in arguing over trivial details of observance. This question is about getting to the very heart of the matter. Among so many laws, was there any one law which touched the core of people's relationship with God? Was there one law which summed up what the other laws were trying to say?
