The Deep End: Made for each other
 by Triona Doherty
 'Turning the front door knob, it came to him that maybe he could sponge away the look of loneliness that he'd seen in Susan's eyes – and John was now pretty sure it was loneliness he'd seen, despite the smiles and the confidences. If he'd learned one thing while he'd been away, it was that loneliness and the open discussion of loneliness is the most taboo subject in the world. Forget sex or politics or religion. Or even failure. Loneliness is what clears out a room' – Douglas Coupland, Miss Wyoming.
 Many of us have experienced loneliness at one time or another. We hear a lot of talk these days about a modern sense of loneliness and isolation, in spite of advancements in mobile technology and the growth of online communities. Yet relationships are at the heart of who we are as human beings.
 The Gospel of Matthew begins and ends with reassurances that we are not alone. At the beginning we are told the one who is coming will be called Emmanuel, meaning 'God is with us', and it concludes with the words of Jesus 'I am with you always, to the very end of the age'. And here in the middle we have Jesus' assurance: 'Where two or three meet in my name, I shall be there with them.' Today's Gospel speaks to us about relationships, and lets us know that God is with us in and through our relationships with other people – when we gather in his name, he is there too.

POINTS TO PONDER - In many ways, we are keepers of our sisters and brothers. We have social responsibility in family and in neighbourhood. Jesus is saying something like that today. We have a responsibility for each other, for the common good. Parents may find this most difficult – to try to guide the family well and not lose them. We teach by example and by love. Even when children are young and making some mistakes, we hope they are not mistakes that last forever, like crime, alcoholism or an unplanned life-changing moment. We pray to God for help. This we do with others. We ask for guidance and find help in the community of the church and of others. That's where God is – two or three gathered is the community of God. Church is the gathered people. God wants the best for each of us. We can help each other to goodness, we can support each other, correct each other, and help each other on our way to God.
 Jesus promises guidance and his presence to his followers for all ages. If we gather in his name, he is with us. The 'in his name' is the relevant condition. That means openness to his word and the traditions faithfully handed on by his community of followers. It means openness to asking for wisdom and guidance and the humility to admit none of us has all the answers.

Discerning God's voice in the midst of tensions
 The submissions to the Irish Synodal Pathway reveal a Church in motion, a community grappling with its identity, grieving its wounds, and reaching for new life. What emerges is not a tidy consensus, but a Spirit-led ferment. There are cries for belonging, tensions over inclusion, and the hopes for deeper formation and shared mission.
 There were those who felt that engagement with contemporary society, especially young people, required recognition of the reality of changed attitudes to sexuality and sexual identity, while others emphasised the importance of maintaining the integrity of authentic church teaching in these areas.
 There were divergences with regard to the legacy of abuse in the Church. For some, a failure to acknowledge fully the suffering of victims and survivors and 'to own our broken past' as a precondition for renewal would contradict and undermine the life-affirming message of the Gospel; for others, while acknowledging the need for accountability and vigilance, there was a perceived risk of distracting from other tasks of renewal and mission.
 There was frustration that liturgical forms and language constituted a barrier to engagement and participation, while others expressed the view that the integrity and beauty of the liturgy should be valued for their capacity to attract and engage
