TODAY - Twenty-Sixth Sunday in Ordinary Time

DOWNWARD PATH TO GREATNESS

Paul, in writing to the Church in Philippi, appears to be addressing a problem of competition and vanity. Part of it is a hymn that is likely drawn from an early Christian hymn regarding Christ's glory through the Father coming through his humility. This hymn is the third reading (canticle) for the Liturgy of the Hours for Sunday Evening Prayer I (Saturday evening prayer) during ordinary time. Paul tells the community that the way to Christian unity is through humility and not through opinionated arrogance. He points to Christ who was not in competition with God to see who was greatest: rather, Christ was the model of lowly and meek service to others. Paradox is often found in the letters of St Paul. What makes worldly sense is inverted to reveal spiritual truths. Christ humbled himself and did not compete with God; as a result, God exalted him, and made Christ greater than any other being. Adam wanted to compete with God and be greater than God; the result was his pride leading to original sin. Jesus, in his self-effacement, conquered death and sin. The fact that Paul says that every creature should worship Christ is a clear statement of the divinity of Jesus. Paul's message to the community in Philippi, and to us today, is don't think of yourself as better than others, be modest and humble, and take an interest in other people.
