Mission Sunday Mission Sunday is today Sunday 18 October. The Annual Mission Sunday Collection will be taken up at all Masses. There is an envelope marked 'Mission Sunday' in your box of envelopes for this collection. Please make cheques payable to 'Melmount Parish' or 'Sion Mills Parish' depending on the Parish. There are approximately 1,500 Irish born missionaries working in more than 80 countries. They continue to spread the Gospel through their work, their deep commitment to the people they serve and their Faith. On Mission Sunday please pray for them and give as generously as you can to the Mission Sunday collection.

Congratulations to the Confirmation Pupils (P7's) of Melmount and Sion Mills and the First Communion (P4's) and Confirmation (P7's) Pupils of the Gael Scoil who were enrolled on their preparation journey at the weekend.

A centenary marked by hope and communion

As the Church prepares to celebrate the 100th World Mission Sunday, Pope Leo XIV invites Catholics to be inspired by the witness of many missionary saints, highlighting St. Francis of Assisi, who "passed into heaven" 800 years ago, and the zeal of Saint Thérèse of the Child Jesus, patroness of the missions, who declared that she would continue her mission even after death: "I shall desire in heaven the same thing as I do now on earth: to love Jesus and to make him loved."

"Your prayers and practical support, particularly on World Mission Day, will be a great help in bringing the Gospel of God's love to everyone, especially the poorest and those most in need," the pope wrote. "Every gift, no matter how small, becomes a meaningful act of missionary communion. I renew my heartfelt gratitude for everything you will do to help me help missionaries throughout the world."

On World Mission Sunday 2026, Catholics around the world are once again invited to pray, to give, and to live their faith as one in Christ, united in mission—so that the Gospel of God's faithful love may reach everyone, especially the poorest and those most in need.

Prayer for Vocations: St Paul could have written this passage from today's Second Reading to our seminarians and to the men discerning their vocation: "We know, brothers, that God loves you and that you have been chosen, because when we brought the Good News to you, it came to you not only as words, but as power and the Holy Spirit and as utter conviction." We pray to the Lord.

Mission Sunday

Stamped with His Image

They come to Jesus with a trap. The Pharisees, who hated the Roman tax, and the Herodians, who lived off it, suddenly the best of friends. Say pay the tax, and the crowd turns on him. Say don't, and Rome will. Either way, he loses.

Jesus asks for a coin. Notice that he does not have one; they do. They are carrying the emperor's face in their own pockets while they ask the question. Whose image is this? Caesar's. Then give Caesar what is Caesar's and give God what is God's.

The coin bears Caesar's image. What bears God's? We do. Every person in this church, every person on the street outside, was made in the image and likeness of God. Caesar can have his coin. God wants the whole of us. The tax is a small matter. The question Jesus leaves hanging is far bigger: have you given God what is stamped with his image?

The first reading says something surprising about power. God calls Cyrus, a pagan king who has never heard of him, "his anointed", and uses him to bring the exiles home. God is not confined to the people who know his name. He works through rulers, through strangers, through history itself, and his purpose is never in doubt.

Today is World Mission Sunday. We pray for, and support, the missionaries who carry the Gospel where Christ is still unknown, and we remember that Irish men and women have been doing that for centuries, supported in their work by prayer and aid. But mission is not only abroad. St Paul tells the Thessalonians that the Gospel came to them "as power and as the Holy Spirit and as utter conviction". That is what we are meant to carry out of here into the mission territory of our own parishes and beyond.

This week, give God what is his, starting with yourself.
