Thoughts on the Gospel for the 32nd Sunday November 8th 2026

The approaching end of the liturgical year regularly brings the usual warnings about being prepared. We know that in the very early Church the Christians believed that Christ's Second Coming, and therefore the end of the world, would come very soon, even in their lifetime. However, by the time the Gospels were put in written form, this began to seem less likely. Does that mean that the warnings about readiness can be put aside? Because, for most of us, it is presumably purely academic to wonder when the end of our universe or of our planet will take place. We are not likely to be around when it happens. What is much more practical, however, is the end of our own world—the end of our own time here on earth. That is anything but an academic consideration. That is the one reality of our future that we can be absolutely certain about. And we know very well—although we often prefer not to think about it—that it can happen at any time and in any place. Today's readings bring us face to face with this reality, this fact. They ask us the question: Am I ready? And they imply consideration of a second question: How can I be ready?

Last Friday November 6th: We held our Annual Bazaar.

We hope you enjoyed it very much. A very special word of thanks to all of you who came and supported the Bazaar and all those many people who donated prizes or gave cash donations that helped make the night a memorable one for many of you, especially the children. The schools, Taobhóg, Coimín and Dooish were very good in spreading the word about the Bazaar to the homes of all the children through their communication systems. We will let you know later on how much was raised this year. As you know we didn't go around the homes of the parish collecting this year. But if anyone would like to make a personal donation there are boxes in the chapels. Thank you so very much.
