World Day of Migrants and Refugees: On this Sunday 27 September, the Church marks the 112th World Day of Migrants and Refugees. This year's theme, 'Even just one of these children', comes from Pope Leo XIV's message and invites us to reflect on the dignity, needs, and hopes of migrant and refugee children and young people. For many children, home is not a place of safety. Conflict, persecution, poverty, and climate change can force families to leave behind everything they know. Pope Leo XIV's calls us "to recognise the dignity of each child, even before considering the condition of being a 'migrant', and to safeguard his or her fundamental rights". In June this year many of the citizens of our city knew the terror of racial violence. The immediate cause of the violence was a response to the horrible stabbing of a man by a Sudanese refugee. This was the third summer of racial violence in the North. We all witnessed on social media the burning of newly arrived citizens from their homes and some who were here living and working for a long time in this city also came under attack. They were attacked because of the colour of their skin, their religion and their ethnic background. A number of them work in the caring professions and are the back-bone of our National Health System. I remember the words of the late John Hume: "Difference is the essence of humanity. Difference is an accident of birth, and it should therefore never be the source of hatred or conflict. Therein lies a most fundamental principle of peace: respect for diversity." I also think of many of our foremothers and forefathers leaving this beautiful country to find work. They too suffered hardship and were grateful to those who in their adopted countries showed them generosity and a warm welcome. Can we return the favour? The origins of the World Day of Migrants and Refugees can be traced to 1914, a few months before the outbreak of World War I. Touched by the drama of millions of Italians who had migrated abroad since the beginning of the 20th century, Pope Pius X called on all Christians to pray for migrants. A few months later, his successor Pope Benedict XV instituted the Day of the Migrant to support spiritually and economically the pastoral work for Italian emigrants. In 1952, Migrant Day widened its scope to include a prayer for all refugees. This weekend is an opportunity for us to pause, pray, and consider how we respond to those who are seeking safety and a place to belong. We are invited to look beyond headlines and statistics, and to recognise the person in front of us: a child, a parent, a brother or sister, a neighbour. We thank God for the skills and gifts that our new fellow country men and women bring to our society. The message of the Gospel today (Matthew 21:28-32) is clear. Even the religious leaders agree with Jesus. The important thing in God's eyes is not merely to 'talk the talk', but to 'walk the walk'. Words, promises and prayers will not fulfil God's will; what counts is Gospel-action in everyday living. St. John Henry Newman wrote about Christian disciples who failed to translate their words into action on behalf of the Gospel - "How many are there who sit still with folded hands, dreaming, doing nothing at all, thinking they have done everything, or need to do nothing, when they merely have had these good thoughts which will save no one". The words of Paul in today's second reading echo in my own heart: "Always consider the other person to be better than yourself so that nobody thinks of his own interests first, but everybody thinks of other people's interest instead" (Philippians 2:4) Father Charles C.P.
