God's Invitation to Us

Dear brothers and sisters, in this Sunday's Gospel, Jesus tells the parable of a king who prepares a great wedding feast for his son. The king sends his servants to invite the guests, but they refuse to come. Some even reject and mistreat the messengers. Eventually, the invitation is extended to everyone—the good and the bad alike—and the wedding hall is filled with guests. This beautiful parable reminds us that God's invitation is always an invitation to joy, communion and new life. The wedding feast represents the Kingdom of God, and the king's invitation reveals God's desire that every person should share in His love. God does not exclude us; He continually calls us to come closer to Him.

Yet the Gospel also contains a serious warning. Some of those first invited were too busy with their own affairs to accept the invitation. This can happen to us as well. We may become so occupied with work, family responsibilities, worries, possessions or personal plans that we gradually leave God aside. We may hear His invitation, but postpone our response: "Perhaps another time."

The second part of the parable is equally important. The king finds a man who has entered the feast without a wedding garment. This reminds us that accepting God's invitation is not enough; we must also allow that invitation to change our lives. The wedding garment can be understood as a symbol of a heart renewed by faith, charity, repentance and good works. We cannot simply say that we belong to Christ while refusing to let Christ transform the way we live.

Every day, God invites us to His feast. He invites us through the Eucharist, through His Word, through the Church, through other people and through the quiet voice of conscience. The question is not whether God is inviting us—He is. The question is whether we are willing to respond.

Perhaps we should ask ourselves: What is preventing me from accepting God's invitation more fully? What occupies my heart so much that I have little time for God? And does my life show that I have truly accepted His invitation? The final words of Jesus are a reminder of both humility and responsibility: "Many are invited, but few are chosen." God calls everyone, but we must freely respond to His grace and live according to that calling. May we never take God's invitation for granted. May our hearts always be ready for His feast, and may the "wedding garment" of faith, love, forgiveness and good works be visible in our daily lives. Then, when the Lord calls us to His eternal banquet, may we be ready to enter with joy.

Fr. Desiderio

Dear Brothers and Sisters, thank you for your continued support of our Parish. As you know our Church is an iconic building in Clonmel. I firmly believe the works we are currently undertaking enable us to showcase the beauty of our Church and continue to serve the people who make up our community. To achieve this and play our part in the wider responsibilities of our faith community I want to establish a fundraising pledge.

Brothers and Sisters, today I invite you to prayerfully contemplate a financial pledge to our fund. Over the next twelve months, for example, if 250 people could pledge €20 a month together, we could raise €60.000.

I encourage you to take time to reflect and discuss this with your family and make a decision that is right for you.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact the Parish Office on 052 61 22773. We look forward with optimism and hope and ask for your prayers and enthusiastic support in this endeavour. May God bless our efforts.

Sincerely in Christ, Fr. Desiderio

If any parishioners would like to hold any fundraising events towards the painting of the church it would be greatly appreciated. The Parish Hall is available for any such events.
Thank you.

Why Are There Four Gospels?

When we open the New Testament, we find not one Gospel, but four: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. At first, we might ask: Why did God give us four Gospels instead of one? Would it not have been simpler to have a single account of the life of Jesus? The four Gospels are not four different stories about four different Jesuses. They are four witnesses to the one Jesus Christ, written from different perspectives and for different communities. Each evangelist helps us to see something unique about who Jesus is and what He came to accomplish.

Matthew presents Jesus especially as the promised Messiah and King. He frequently shows how Jesus fulfils the promises of the Old Testament. Matthew helps us understand that Jesus is the One whom Israel was waiting for and that His Kingdom is now present among us.

Mark is the shortest and most direct Gospel. His account moves quickly from one event to another and presents Jesus as the Son of God and the suffering Servant. Mark reminds us that following Christ is not simply about admiring Him; it means being willing to follow Him on the way of the Cross.

Luke emphasises the mercy and compassion of Jesus. He gives particular attention to the poor, sinners, women, foreigners and those who were often forgotten by society. Through Luke, we see a Saviour who came to seek and save the lost. His Gospel reveals the extraordinary depth of God's mercy.

John is different in style and language. He invites us to go more deeply into the mystery of Jesus. From the very beginning, Jesus is presented as the eternal Word who was with God and who became flesh. John's Gospel continually calls us to believe in Jesus and to discover that He is the source of eternal life.

The four Gospels therefore complement one another. Each gives us a different window through which we can encounter the same Lord. Together they give us a richer and fuller picture of Jesus: the promised Messiah, the Son of God, the compassionate Saviour and the eternal Word made flesh.

That is why the Church treasures all four Gospels. Four voices, one Good News; four witnesses, one Lord; four Gospels, one Jesus Christ.

Look to the Heart

There is a big problem with this story. In a good story Jesus always raises a question. It seems a bit unfair to be thrown out, having been brought in at the last minute, because you had no garment. However, the garment means you want to be there and to take on the values of the feast. The garment is the desire of the heart to be a follower in name and deed.

God invites all, but expects us to come with a good heart. Often we see people around mass who seem not to respect it. They may not come often, but God looks to the desires of the heart. Maybe the non-churchy parents who want their child baptised know deep down that their love for the child brings them to baptism. Is that not a good reason? Or maybe the young people who come to mass because they have exams coming up and need all the help they can get?

While Jesus is totally the inviting one, he wants us to remain with him. The heart that follows is the heart that wants to love, and that desire is the wedding garment.

The man knew in his heart that he should not be there. Jesus sees into the heart. What we look for is the sincerity in what brings us to God and that can be different for everybody. Religion is firstly of the heart, and then practice. We never know what's in the heart of our people who sometimes come in faith. You never can tell! Let God be the judge of that!

Recall a time you felt invited by God to help a neighbour.

Offer that thanks to God now.

Lord, make my heart compassionate like yours.

From the Catechism of the Catholic Church

What is the Liturgy?

The word "liturgy" can sometimes sound like something reserved for priests, churches, or formal ceremonies. But the Catechism of the Catholic Church teaches us that the liturgy is much more profound: it is the participation of the People of God in the work of Christ (CCC 1069).

The liturgy is first and foremost the work of Jesus Christ. Through the liturgy, Christ continues to make present among us the mystery of His Passion, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension. The Church does not simply remember these events as something that happened in the past; through the sacraments, especially the Eucharist, Christ makes His saving work present to His people. The Catechism teaches that the liturgy is also a participation in the prayer of Christ to the Father. When we gather for Mass, we are not merely attending a religious service. We are joining ourselves to Christ, who offers Himself to the Father for the salvation of the world.

The liturgy is therefore the source and summit of Christian life (CCC 1074). Everything we do as Christians should lead us towards the liturgy, and from the liturgy we receive the grace and strength to live our Christian vocation in the world. The Eucharist is at the heart of this life because in it Christ gives us Himself and unites us more deeply with God and with one another.

The Church celebrates the liturgy through the sacraments, the Liturgy of the Hours, and other forms of liturgical prayer. The sacraments are visible signs through which Christ communicates His grace. Through Baptism we become children of God; through Confirmation we are strengthened by the Holy Spirit; through Reconciliation we receive God's mercy; and in the Eucharist we receive Christ Himself.

The liturgy also involves our active participation. This does not simply mean saying prayers, singing hymns, or performing a particular role. True participation means offering our hearts and our lives to God together with Christ. We come to Mass carrying our joys, struggles, families, work, suffering, and hopes, and we place everything before the Lord.

Finally, the liturgy does not end when we leave the church. Having encountered Christ, we are sent into the world to live what we have celebrated. The grace received at the altar should transform our daily lives, making us more loving, forgiving, generous, faithful, and attentive to those around us. The liturgy, therefore, is not merely something we do for God. It is first the work of Christ, who invites us to share in His life and His saving mission. Through the liturgy, God sanctifies us, and we are sent forth to become witnesses of Christ in the world.

Holy Hour

'Neither theological knowledge nor social action alone is enough to keep us in love with Christ unless both are preceded by a personal encounter with Him.

Theological insights are gained not only from between two covers of a book, but from two bent knees before an altar.

The Holy Hour becomes like an oxygen tank to revive the breath of the Holy Spirit in the midst of the foul and fetid atmosphere of the world.'

Family Corner

The Family as a Witness of Hope

In a world where many people experience fear, uncertainty and loneliness, the Christian family has a beautiful mission: to be a witness of hope. Hope is not simply thinking that everything will be fine. Christian hope comes from trusting that God is with us, that He loves us, and that He never abandons us.

A family becomes a witness of hope when children experience, through their parents, that faith makes a real difference in everyday life. Children learn hope not only from what we teach them, but especially from what they see in us. When parents pray, forgive, encourage one another and remain faithful during difficulties, children discover that God can be trusted even when life is not easy.

The family can witness to hope through small and simple things. A prayer together before going to bed, Sunday Mass, saying "I am sorry" after an argument, helping someone in need, visiting a lonely person, sharing what we have, or simply listening to a child who is worried—all these moments can become signs of God's presence.

Parents have a particularly important role. Children need to see that Christianity is not merely a collection of rules, but a relationship with Jesus Christ who gives meaning and direction to our lives. When parents speak about God with trust and gratitude, children gradually learn to bring their own joys, fears and questions to Him.

Christian hope is especially important when a family faces difficulties. There may be illness, financial worries, disagreements, disappointment or uncertainty about the future. The Christian family does not pretend that these things do not exist. Instead, it faces them together, remembering the words of Christ: "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Believe in God, believe also in me" (John 14:1).

Children who grow up in a home where faith, love and forgiveness are lived are given a precious gift. They learn that failure is not the end, that forgiveness is always possible, that difficulties can be overcome together, and that God's love is greater than our fears. Every Christian family, therefore, can become a small light of hope in the world. We do not need to be a perfect family. We simply need to allow Christ to be at the centre of our home. When a family lives with faith, love, prayer and trust in God, it quietly proclaims to the world: there is always hope, because God is with us.

SPLENDOR OF THE ROSARY

Caryll Houselander (1901-1954) wrote some beautiful prayers on the rosary as London was being bombed in World War 11. Here is an excerpt of her prayers:

The Finding in the Temple through Mary seeking her lost Son, may we be given grace
 always to seek for the Christ-child and always to find him.

Let us find him in all children,
 and in all who have a child's needs
 the helpless, the sick, the aged;
 in all who serve and are trusting and poor;
 in all who are lonely and homeless.

Let us too become as little children,
 to find the Divine Child in our own hearts.

A ROYAL WEDDING (Matthew 22 1-14)

Today's gospel is difficult. Stories of judgement, weeping and gnashing of teeth just do not appeal to most people. We hear about a King whose invitations to his son's wedding banquet are repeatedly refused. In some instances his messengers are killed.

One interpretation of this parable is that it is an allegory for the Jesus story, God's invitation to the Messianic banquet has been refused by those who are expected to embrace it. This banquet is therefore opened up to the unexpected, the Gentiles, the poor, those on the margins, the outcast.

Going deeper again, we can hear that God wants to be in a relationship with each of us. We are all invited to this banquet. Yet, sometimes we exclude ourselves from being in fellowship with God. We may be hurt, suffering in a way that is preventing us from accepting the invitation to experience God's love and hospitality. We simply want to be left alone. Notice how the host in this parable persists. God does not give up on us.

And what about that man who did come but was not suitably dressed? If we accept the invitation we should be ready for change and not just change of an outer garment, real change. Because any real experience of God in our lives transforms us in some way or another. The Gospel is meant to make us uncomfortable. Otherwise, what changes for us? We can sit around and listen to nice gentle passages that keep us comforted, or we can be challenged and moved to experiencing something real, something which requires us to show up and be transformed. It is up to us whether or not we accept this invitation.

GOSPEL REFLECTION
MATTHEW 22:1-14

The landowner had prepared for a large crowd. When he sent his servants out to personally remind the guests to come, some of the servants were mistreated, beaten and even killed by his prospective guests! Quite naturally, the king was enraged.

What does this Sunday's Gospel say to us? I doubt that we have had the experience this story speaks of. However, we all have been disappointed and upset at various times in our lives.

We may have been deeply hurt by someone or betrayed by another. Our natural human response is to be angry, hurt and disappointed – and rightly so.

In these situations we need to take time to calm down and deal with the hurt, anger and disappointment. We need to acknowledge and feel the emotions. If we repress them, most likely the emotions will come back with a vengeance. But we can't stop there. We also need to honestly acknowledge what we are experiencing but then with time to gradually 'let those feelings go' and forgive.

Most often this is the last thing that we want to do! It will take time but it is an important step to take.

If we nurse our anger and hurt, we are not hurting the individuals who disappointed us, we are hurting ourselves and those we love! If we are not able to forgive, we simply need to ask God to help us. May we have the grace to ask God to heal the anger and hurt – and to free us!
