23rd Sunday in Ordinary Time

Thoughts on the Gospel

Matthew 18:15–20

In today's Gospel, Jesus teaches that reconciliation is a sacred responsibility, rooted in love, humility and a desire for restored relationship.

When conflict or hurt arises, the first response should not be anger, gossip, avoidance or revenge, but a quiet and honest conversation with the person involved. This private dialogue gives space for listening, understanding and healing.

If the conflict cannot be resolved alone, Jesus encourages the involvement of trusted witnesses — not to shame or accuse, but to help guide the conversation with wisdom, fairness and care. When difficulties continue, the wider community has a role in encouraging accountability, unity and peace.

Remember LOVE

L — Listen with humility

Hear one another deeply and seek to understand.

O — Offer reconciliation

Choose restoration and forgiveness over pride.

V — Value community

Protect the unity, peace and wellbeing of the community.

E — Embrace divine presence

Trust that God is present wherever people gather in faith, prayer, forgiveness and harmony.

Jesus reminds us that love is more than a feeling; it is a way of living. Through patience, courage, humility and faith, conflict can become an opportunity for healing, forgiveness and renewed fellowship.

May the peace of Christ guide our hearts, strengthen our unity, and fill our community with love, forgiveness and grace. Amen.
